There's Joy In Motoring If Your Tires Are Filled With

Airease

Airease Costs Much Less Than Other So-Called Tire Fillers and Is Sold Under This Guarantee

If after thirty days use you do not find Airease satisfactory, we will remove it, replace you on air and refund your money.

Not only is AIREASE all that we claim for it, but our guarantee is backed by a financial responsibility that is unquestioned. We are ready to prove to any man's entire satisfaction all that we claim for AIREASE, and we are ready to make business propositions for territorial rights that are surprising in their money-making opportunities.

Write or telegraph today for reservations, and we will make it our business to offer you our terms at once. What part of the country would interest you most?

AIREASE is as resilient as air. It is not affected by heat or cold. It will not disintegrate nor harden. It is absolutely proof against puncture troubles, and will not blow out because there is no pressure. It triples the life of the tire. It is not our ambition to fill more tires than any other tire-filling concern, but to fill them better.

AIREASE is inserted in the inner tube the same as air. We are not the biggest tire filler in the country, but we are the best—this claim is backed by the mileage of our AIREASE filled tires and the satisfaction of our users.

As Mr. C. W. Huske's chauffeur Sam says, "There is some class to AIREASE because you can dress up on the job."

FIGHT EXPERTS SAY PALZER AND M'CARTY ARE EVENLY MATCHED

Where One Seems Superior in One Respect
Other Has Bulge in Another Direction.
Interest in Match Is Intense.

San Francisco, December 21.—With the rising young glove-wielders of a dozen or more years ago. He fell short of true championship from himself, but he could be depended upon to shatter the dreams of any young husky aspirant to front rank honors.

Just at present the Los Angeles sports are singing the praises of Luther McCarty. They are sorry they judged him by the ordinary white hope standards. They learn too late that he knew how to lead himself together like a seasoned heavyweight instead of floundering like a novice. McCarty's

Jim was to latter-day heavies what Peter Maher and Joe Choynski were straight left was a revelation, and his short right, which was not so much in evidence, was equally effective. The big Nesbrough's pose was such that whenever Flynn attempted to jump close, poor Jim ran against a steady-lying punch.

McCarty was as firm as a rock at all times. He was well set, and he presented an almost impregnable front to the fellow who has made a specialty of storming white hopes for years.

Just how it will be when McCarty meets Palzer remains to be seen. Palzer, of course, will not be as easy to handle as Flynn. The latter corner pares with McCarty as a bull terrier does with a mastiff, but in the coming engagement there will be no discrepancy in size.

So far as reach and weight is concerned, there will be nothing to choose between Palzer and Luther, and this means that the coming fight will of necessity be entirely different in character from the Flynn-McCarty engagement.

Of a surety McCarty will not hold Palzer at arm's length with the left while picking a target for the right.

In the arguments that are being indulged in at present, Palzer and McCarty are regarded as an evenly matched pair. Any particular point in which McCarty excels is thought to be offset by some fighting qualification possessed by Palzer.

McCarty is considered the better boxer, Palzer the harder hitter. In the matter of strength the men are supposed to be on a par, but it is thought that Palzer's ruggedness has been thoroughly proven, whereas nothing much is known of McCarty's ability to endure rough usage.

When the various fighting attributes of the two big men are compared, the contest looms up as an event in which the chances are equally balanced, but even if the participants were a pair of tyroists, the impressive appearance of the two giants, considered in conjunction with the great rivalry existing between them would lend a vast interest to the affair. The clash will probably cause as much fire as the two battles between Tom Sharkey and Jim Jeffries, when the taller and the boxer-maker were comparatively young at the game.
